Dying to Talk: Conscious Conversations Talking About Death Won't Kill You! Think Death Cafe with a Twist. Dying to Talk is a gathering where people join together to discuss what matters most to them around the issues of life and death. Dying to Talk provides an opportunity to respectfully discuss death as a natural part of our lives. Engaging in conscious conversations can help us get comfortable making decisions about what our end-of-life could look like for us. When we plan for our death, it makes room for us to live each day with meaning and helps lighten the burden for our loved ones after our death. Dying to Talk is not a bereavement/grief support resource. Resources available if needed. Mark your calendar the next event is Wednesday, January 22, 2025 here at Mount Forest United. This event is FREE pre-register at eventbrite.ca or by calling RoseAnne Desmarais at 226-820-4945.
